A Construction Company That Cares for its Customers

If you are considering designing or constructing a property in Thailand, then it certainly pays dividends to contact Kensington. Not only do they offer excellent advice but they provide an unbeatable service too. As Thailand's premier custom house builders they are certainly adept in helping you turn your dreams into reality. The benefits to you are easy to see: They keep winning on quality, client satisfaction and value for money. Their prices are low with the added bonus of expert opinion every step of the way. Kensington have a strong track record of producing the goods and living up to their promises. Their reputation is well founded on constant customer care and a successful history of design and build.

I have captured a few photos of a recent success story. Here they assisted a couple design and build their dream home; a beautiful 3 bedroom villa with a large lagoon swimming pool with waterfall. Having taken the tour I really was impressed. It was so peaceful and tranquil; the water cascading down from the rock waterfall, the inviting crystal clear water of the pool, the beautiful landscaped gardens. They certainly did a fabulous job of helping them build their home. It was simply divine and the home was built to very high standards. I asked the owners what they thought of their experience with Kensington and this is what they said.

Name: Mr & Mrs. Altpass - August 10th 2009
Project: "550 sqm 3 bedroom Villa with Lagoon Pool and Waterfall"

"As an experienced architect from Germany I have designed and built many homes myself. Kensington have done an excellent job both on architectural design and construction. It was very productive to use an architect who works for them and in addition have Kensington's head of construction work closely with the architect at all times. It saves money, time and reduces problems. The Kensington team have put a huge amount of effort into our home and done everything possible to help us. We have only good words to speak of this company. Kensington have done a perfect job. We are very satisfied with our house, the way they performed and most importantly the decency with which they dealt with us at all times. They show constant commitment, and expertise. We will be very happy to give them the best recommendations to anyone wishing to design/build a home in Thailand. We would like to thank them for all their kind help."

Well you can't get much better than that. As I say I think these true life accounts speak for themselves and confirm Kensington as a company with a fabulous reputation. You can in fact read more testimonials on their web site www.thailandbuilders.com. In addition to building houses they can build bungalows, hotels, shops, resorts and condominiums. They work with some of the best professionals in the industry and are associated with some wonderful people. They have English speaking Thai architects who work with them too and they offer a professional architectural service if required. So if you are interested and want some help with design or construction why not contact Kensington. Their Managing Director Chris Clayton is always willing to meet you personally and help in any way he can.
